Historic Cards and Games

The Historic Cards and Games Collection of Stuart and Marilyn R. Kaplan represents 37 years of avid collecting. The June 21, 2006 sale at Christie's New York includes over 50 sterling silver bridge and playing card boxes, 180 bridge trump indicators, 125 rare tarot and tarock decks circa 18th and 19th centuries, 14 Minchiate of Florence and Tarocchini of Bologna decks from the 18th and 19th centuries, and a complete set of six original wood blocks for printing an Edoardo Dotti tarot deck circa 1860s.

Also included in the sale are 40 early cartomancy decks, several 19th century card presses, clocks with playing card faces, 40 cribbage boards, 90 important books from the 16th to 19th centuries, early American playing cards, tax documents relating to playing cards, a choice selection of early American, English, French, German and Japanese card games, early photographs of card players, 60 oil paintings and prints depicting card play, several mechanical devices with playing card themes, exceptional Victorian game compendiums, playing card ephemera, and Napoleonic P.O.W. boxes.

The 25 hand-carved bone Napoleonic P.O.W. domino and playing card boxes, circa 1802-1815, were selected in Art & Antiques Magazine's 100 Top Treasures in America. Other highlights include a tour-de-force Chinese export ivory and silver card box circa 1800; Chinese lacquered Loo boxes circa 1830; a gold-tooled Visconti-Sforza tarocchi card from the 15th century; Mughal Ganjifa Indian cards hand painted on ivory circa 1850; early 19th-century tarot cards depicting the life of Napoleon; a rare French anti-royalist tarot pack circa 1795 with the suits changed to liberty and equality; an American Civil War game circa 1863 with slogan "I'm off to Canada" suggesting a way to avoid serving in the Union army; Apache Indian cards on rawhide circa 1876; tarock cards with bullet holes from a 1912 Pawnee Bill Wild West Show with the buckskin cuffs worn by the sharp shooter, May Lillie; and an Austrian WWI propaganda tarot deck showing a German U-Boat victoriously steaming up New York Harbor.
