NEW PRODUCT SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

We are always interested in considering new products for future production, and we will be pleased to study and evaluate your submittal. Many great new products have been conceived by individual artists and authors. However, because we receive many submittals from throughout the world, and since we are constantly carrying on research and making new developments within our own organization, you must recognize the possibility that the product that is new to you may be known or already under consideration by us; thus we reserve the right to the use of our own developments, even though these may subsequently be disclosed to us by outsiders. We do not ordinarily disclose our developments until they are ready for publication and marketing. This fact, among others, may make it impossible to discuss the reasons for rejecting any idea or product.

Our guidelines for the consideration of any products submitted to us, and the facts and reasons for this procedure, may be helpful to you in understanding our policy:

1. We will not assume or consider a disclosure of any product as any special relationship, obligation or on a confidential basis. Often, in order to evaluate a submittal fully, we may have to secure the advice of attorneys, prospective customers, sales staff and other persons.
2. All disclosures of products are voluntary on your part.
3. If you are under 18 years of age we cannot work or enter into a contract with you directly, but only through your legal guardian.
4. In the event there is more than one owner of a submitted product, then all owners must appoint one person with authority to submit the product to us on behalf of all owners.
5. You should retain a duplicate copy of any materials submitted to us.
6. You must assure us that, to the best of your knowledge, you or you and your partners are the only person or persons who have originated your product and that the product is not representative or similar to a product already being distributed in the market and that you have the legal right to enter into a contract with us for its production.
7. Submission of your product constitutes acknowledgment on your part that you rely solely on your rights under copyright and patent laws.
8. That we may be willing to consider and review your product is not to be construed as an admission on our part that the product is new.
9. Under no circumstances can we consider any concept or idea that is merely outlined in writing or described to us orally.
10. Any material sent to us must be accompanied by page 2 of the completed and signed New Product Submission Form.
11. It is understood and agreed that U.S. Games Systems, Inc. in its own judgment may accept or reject the product you submit and shall not be obligated in any way or at any time concerning this or any other submission you may make, unless and until U.S. Games Systems, Inc. shall, at its own election, enter into a properly executed written agreement, and then only according to all the terms of said agreement.
12. Your proposal should include the following: high resolution jpg or pdf samples of the work; a brief description of the project including the theme or concept; sample writing of the instructions or booklet; summary of your background and relevant credentials; along with a photo or scan of this signed agreement.
13. You may email to submissions@usgamesinc.com
Alternatively, if you desire to send us a hardcopy sample of your product, please send it to the following address:

If your item is accepted for inclusion in our product line, your interests will be protected by a formal royalty contract.
